

Basawa Commerce Smart (Inventory Management System)

Inventory Management is one of the basic problems in almost every company. Before computer age and integration, paper tables and paperwork solutions were being used as inventory management tools. These were very far from being a solution, took so much time, even needed employees just for this section of organization. There was no efficient solution available in the many companies during these days. Every process was based on paperwork, human fault rate was high, the process and the tracing the inventory losses were not possible, and there was no efficient logging systems. After the computer age, every process is started to be integrated into electronic environment. And now we have qualified technology to implement new solutions to these problems. Software based systems bring the advantages of having the most efficient control with less effort and employees.

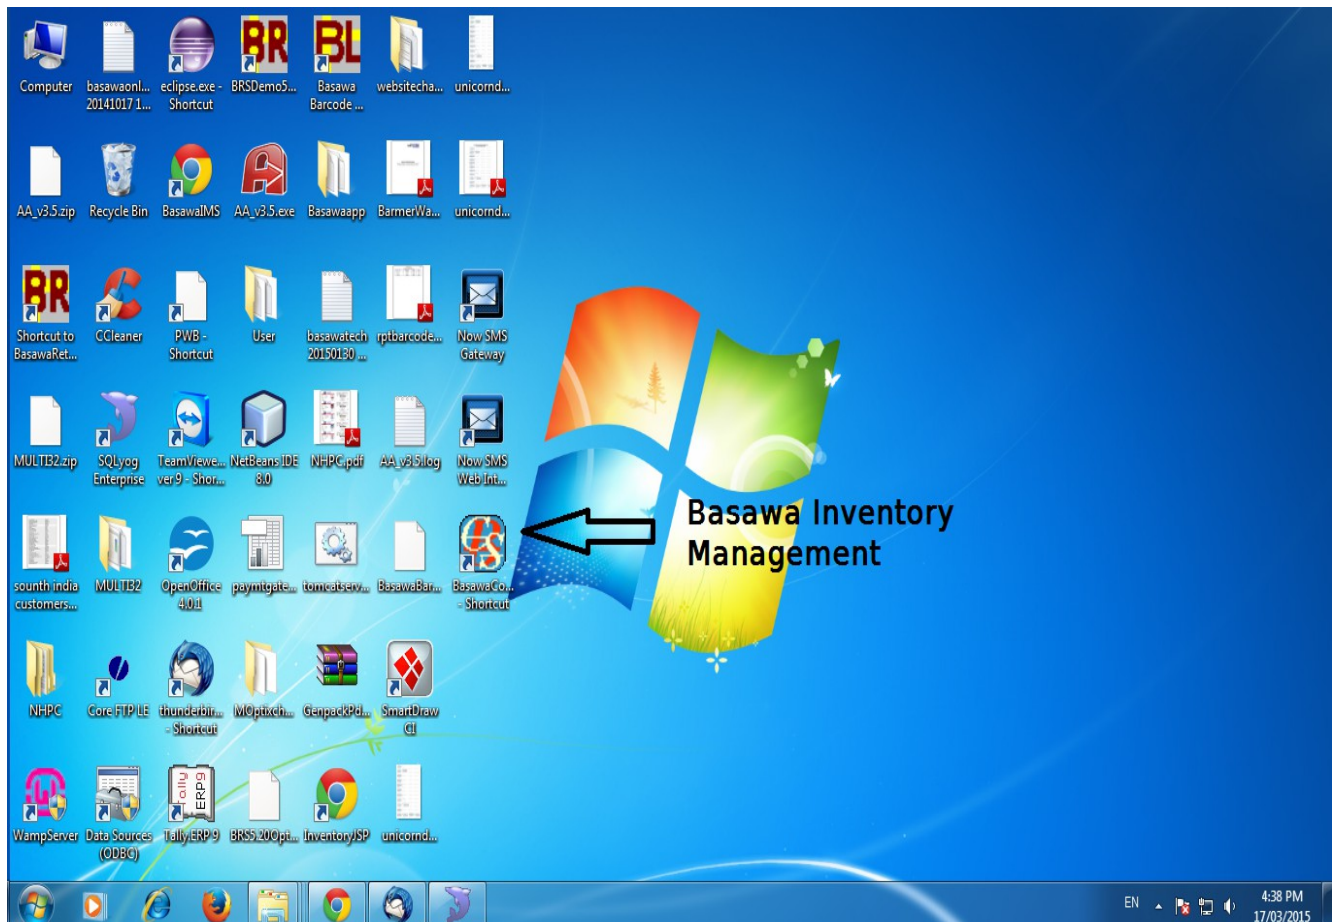

These developments provide new solutions for also inventory management systems in this context. In this paper, a new solution for Inventory Management System (IMS) is designed and implemented. Most importantly, this system is designed for Kadir Has University and used as Inventory Management System.

Inventory Management System (IMS) is generally used by IT Office/Department or Accounting Office of a company or a university. Therefore, searching the basic needs for implementation is the first step of IMS design. Several meetings with IT Office and Accounting Office are arranged. Accounting Office needs detailed reporting tools, detailed categorization and declaration of specifications on each item, purchasing and billing info. The Information Technologies Office needs another module except the requirements of Accounting Office. The module is about the interior maintenance and exterior product service flow. For interior maintenance flow, there will be a section. This section will be available for all users. Basically, a maintenance request will be created by the users, and the IT Office will respond to these requests. Finally, it is necessary to consider the end user's needs that are also important part of the IMS software design. This led us to use barcode based system.

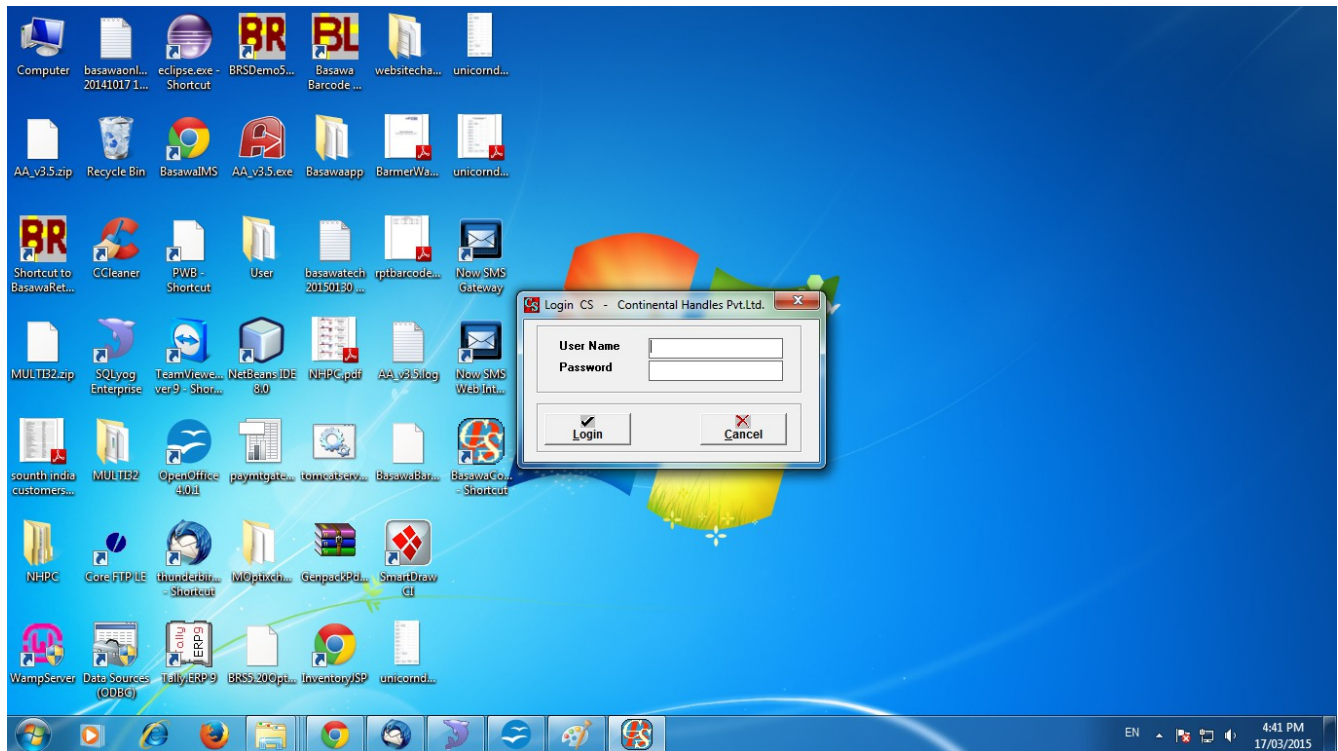

Basawa Commerce Smart (Inventory Management) software is developed to take care of all Inventory Related problems and give a perfect solution for maintaining warehouse of a company.
